OneClic.vet: The Onedoc for Swiss Veterinarians

Switzerland's first online appointment booking platform for vets — 24/7, no commissions, no medical interference.

In Switzerland, over two million pets are waiting for their owners to pick up the phone and book a vet appointment. In 2026, OneClic.vet puts an end to this anomaly.

Launched in 2026 from Morgins (VS), OneClic.vet is the first Swiss veterinary directory platform with integrated online booking. The comparison with Onedoc — the reference for doctors — is unavoidable: same logic, same rigour, different sector.

“A vet should not be less accessible than a restaurant. In 2026, booking a consultation for your pet should take thirty seconds — even at midnight.”

Ludovic Picard, founder of OneClic.vet

A structural problem — a Swiss solution

Vet appointments are still booked predominantly by phone. For practices, this means dozens of calls daily, overwhelmed front desks and time taken away from patient care. For pet owners, it means being unable to book outside opening hours. OneClic.vet solves both problems simultaneously.

What sets OneClic.vet apart

- Comprehensive Swiss veterinary directory, searchable by region and town
- Online booking 24/7 — optional activation by the practice
- No commission on medical acts
- No interference with medical practice
- Full agenda control retained by the vet
- Data hosted in Switzerland — nFADP compliant
- Already adopted by several partner practices in Switzerland

Already live

Several partner practices have activated the solution since launch, reducing phone workload significantly. Testimonials available on request, with prior practice approval.

National rollout underway

OneClic.vet currently covers French-speaking Switzerland and is expanding nationally. The goal: to become the structured access point for vet appointment booking across Switzerland.
